NEW EXHIBITS

This February, the Children's Museum of Stockton officially welcomed our newest exhibits made possible by the San Joaquin County Office of Education, Family Resource Center, Kaiser Permanente, and other local organizations and foundations. The Amazing Airways exhibit (red), our Health Lab (blue), and the 211 Exhibit (yellow) have become the latest attractions for our young and young-at-heart guests. The exhibits, along with our new playground and outdoor musical structures, were unveiled at a ribbon-cutting ceremony hosted at the museum in February.

QUIZ TIME

Remember to look for me! I love to play and I am hiding somewhere on this newsletter!
- Lila

What was the very first exhibit the museum ever had?
HINT: It is also the longest running exhibit.

Find the answer in our 'Jokes' section.

Toy Soldiers

Thank you to everyone who gave name suggestions for our toy soldiers. We were delighted for "Red, Blue, and Yellow" to have so many names to choose from!

The new names for our beloved toy soldiers are:

TILLIE,
BENNY, and SUNNY!

Be sure to say hello to Tillie and Benny as you walk into the museum and to Sunny as you enter the outdoor playground! To find out the meanings behind each name, please visit our website's "Newsletter" section in the Activities & Events tab.

A MESSAGE FROM EDWARD

Dear Friends,

One of the things that is special about the Children's Museum of Stockton is how fiercely we protect the simplicity of play. Here, children play without rules or restrictions, without needing to follow directions, and without working towards a grade. Simple unrestricted play encourages a child to explore their imagination, creativity, and individuality. Last week, I chatted with a few of the kindergartners who had just finished up their field trip. I asked what their favorite part of the museum was, and so many cheered back, "The grocery store!" I asked one student if they had chosen the cookies for their grocery cart. She looked at me and replied, "Nope. I picked the fruits and vegetables!" She let me know how much pride she took in her choices! I love that our museum empowers our community's children to express their own unique personalities.

Edward
